

PUBLISHED EVERY MORNING
AT THE DEMOCRAT BUILDING,
NORTH SIDE OF GREEN, BETWEEN THIRD AND FOURTH STREETS.
BY HARNEY, BRIGHT & CO.

The price of a copy is 25 cents. The subscribers in the city of Louisville and the surrounding cities, for fifteen cents per week, payable in advance, and for one year, annually.

Subscriptions for mailing to foreign countries, $1.00 for six months, and $2.00 for one year, annually.

Advertisers are paid for insertion, five cents per line for the first insertion, five cents per line for all subsequent insertions.

W. A. BROWN, C. T. GEORGEAN,

M. DOON & GEO. GEORGEAN,

COTTON FACTORS,

PRODUCE AND

COMMISSION MERCHANTS

No. 32 Front street (Commercial Block).

MEMPHIS, TENN.

General cloth merchants, all commissions, cotton and tobacco, import and export, supplies of all descriptions.

C. W. LEWIS, C. T. GEORGEAN,

L. LEWIS & GEO. GEORGEAN,

GROCERS,

COTTON FACTORS

And

GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

GREENVILLE, MISS.

General cloth merchants, all commissions, cotton and tobacco, import and export, supplies of all descriptions.

DO YOU WANT RECLAMATION?

II—700 to

WYANDOTTE CAVY

Near

LEAVENWORTH & CRAWFORD CO., INDIANA.

THEIR horses now conning when people will see them escape from the care and perplexity of car men, who will return when they can no longer be of service to you, giving mineral water, beer, whisky, rum, etc., in exchange for your horses or mares, which you may have in your possession, and when you want to sell, we will buy them at a good price, and, above all, explore and take care of them.

COMMUNIST IN WYANDOTTE CAVE. It is proposed to open a new cave in Wyandotte, and it is intended to be a subterranean lake.

Their horses now conning when people will see them escape from the care and perplexity of car men, who will return when they can no longer be of service to you, giving mineral water, beer, whisky, rum, etc., in exchange for your horses or mares, which you may have in your possession, and when you want to sell, we will buy them at a good price, and, above all, explore and take care of them.

WYANDOTTE HOUSE.

THEY have a house at Leavenworth provided to them by the people of the cave. When they are here, we will provide for them at this house with furnished walls.

WYANDOTTE CAVE.

WEAR

BUSINESS DIRECTORY.

The Result.
Our readers yesterday had the satisfaction of seeing a very pleasant piece of news to many, and we hope no very bad news to any.
The Radicals of this city could not expect Kentucky to repudiate her constitutional Unionism, much less to countenance those who are professedly hostile and vindictive against Kentucky. We hope they will recognize the popular will and bow to its dictates. Let them learn to bear defeat without appealing to external influence. To illustrate the evil, let us give a fable after the manner of Esopus:

Once upon a time the goats and sheep in a certain field fell out about the control of the folds, each seeking it. The sheep got to be more numerous, and as they had both suffered from the shepherd and sheepdog, they had established a Democratic government. The sheep had the majority, and, perhaps, used to the advantage of their own kind, driving the best of the pasturage and the young grass to them. Especially they elected a bell sheep instead of a goat to lead the whole flock, who kept them in the inundating meadows, by running streams instead of taking them to the high lands and rocky heights preferred by the goats.
The latter bore this for sometime, but, at last wearying, they took up with certain wild wolves and applied to them for aid in putting down the usurpations of the sheep. The rams did their best and succeeded in their combat, just as was done the other day, when the goats made such a strong appeal to the wolves that, nothing bath, they came into the fold. For a while all went well. The goats were allowed to have the upper hand, and the wolves devastated the sheep and destroyed them without stint. At length, however, still more wolves came in and got all the offices and fat places, and began to destroy the goats. The destruction was fearful. The goats appealed to their old enemies the sheep, but they, too, were powerless, when the whole flock, sheep and goats, went back to the shepherd, with his dog, and besought him to come back and slaughter and shear as he pleased, so that he protected them from the wolves, and this was the end of the happy republic of the sheep and the goats.

We need not teach a moral to the simple story, where meaning is so plain. We live very contentedly now and at peace, even if one party is more prescriptive in some things than we wish, our rights to protection, property and good order are undisturbed. We live in a happy republic of laws, where no man need be denied privileges, if he only concedes a settled question as settled.
It, however, our Radical friends get goutish and call upon the wild wolves, the wolves will soon come. They will take all power. No Kentucky Radical will be looked upon as "safe" and the wolves, the Federal Radicals, will take all the offices and make new ones. We will have a military governor, military court presided over by Massachusetts office-seekers, tithes for spoliis as wolves for blood, and anxious to make front out of the oppressed people. It is the world's history. The Roman proconsul has used his power to acquire wealth, and the burglar agent does the same. Each subordinate, feeling himself a foreigner, divided and separated from those among whom he lives, only seeks to make a tame for himself, and then to return to his home, his friends, the habits and ways of his youth to spend his days in ease.

We would dislike for the Kentucky Radicals to rule Kentucky, for many reasons, but that would be far better than to bring in the wolves, who would divide the Kentucky Radicals as well as the Democrats. It is again such a consequence we earnestly warn the Radicals in their present defeat to take no steps to invite the oppressors in. I only think their cause is just, we expect them to trust to its justice for a final award, and not to seek to profit by the injustice of others. We cannot think a Democratic swell will be sought for any other purpose than to do such things as all good citizens approve. Such is our wish and such we do not doubt will be the result, and finally all our citizens will come to exult, as we do, in the great Democratic victory of Saturday.

The Irish Church Question.

The disputes of yesterday morning, by the cable, inform the reader that the ministry has been signally defeated on the question of the Irish Church. We are not told what was the specific language of the "resolution" of Mr. Gladstone; nor are we informed as to the precise course of action of Mr. Disraeli. As mention is made, however, of "an appeal to the people," which is expected and no doubt with ample reason to sustain Gladstone, we are to infer that Mr. Disraeli did not resign, but dissolved the Parliament. We shall probably have more definite information to-morrow. Meantime it is certain that the opposition of Ireland by the church establishment is in a sure and rapid course of removal.

Thus, it is the intention of the Democrat to furnish to the country readers a newspaper every day in the year for just half of that they have hitherto paid for six papers a week for the same time. In all respects it will not only maintain its well-established reputation, but will endeavor to make it, and at a reduced price and in a more compact form.

The attention of postmasters and all others is invited to an inspection of its merits—A. C. G.—and to supply, Lengthy correspondence will necessarily be excluded, and the expense of great public interest.

This is the first paper in the office, will begin publication in that of any other paper in the West, but if thereby the volume of the reader is saved and increased, our compensation is sure. When due to us, we will be prompt to pay, and every paper discounted with the expiration of subscription.

To Correspondents.

The columns of the Democrat are open to the public, and short communications on subjects of interest to the masses will be promptly published. All matters pertaining to the advancement of the manufactures and trade of Louisville, and of the works and producing classes, will receive prompt attention. Names of correspondents must invariably accompany their communications.

To Newsmen.

The Daily Democrat can be obtained at the office by application in person or by letter. All orders promptly filled, and at rates offering most substantial inducements to newsmen everywhere.

The Industrial Council of New York has asked the repeal of the eight-hour law. We would like to know the feeling of working-men before we give this an approval.

The fire marshal of Chicago reports immovable fires. The place is so near the brimstone, sulphur works it seizes.

The English guards were called the butchers, which was anglicized into the beef-eaters and are brave as martyrs at the stake.

The Impeachment.

As will have been observed, the court of impeachment has adjourned till Thursday next. All the signs of the times indicate that the force of the opponents weakens with time and the necessity of showing their hands. The resolution of the body into a court-bent in its nature to be fatal to the President, from that moment, it was destined to become more and more transparent that Andrew Johnson was not on trial for crimes alleged to have been committed against the Constitution and laws, but that he was arraigned before the highest legal tribunal of the land to answer for offenses against a political organization.

That many of those who at first would have voted for conviction, and who saw to other probable termination of the trial, are now not so intent upon that result or so sanguine of its success in that direction, is shown in several ways besides the lessening interest in attendance upon the trial, and the willingness with which adjournment was granted till Thursday. Time has been given to study the immediate and prospective consequences of that success. Combinations are not so complete as they appear to be a week ago. The sneeze of the enterprise might jolt amazingly the proceedings of that convention and might release amazingly the prospects of conviction. Hence, it is more than probable that we shall see the prosecution willingly allowed to drift along till after that.

Some interesting suggestions will be found in our column of "Political News and Sentiments."

The Connecticut Election.
Connecticut votes to-day. The result will be looked for with great interest because of the presumed influence upon the future, upon the action of Congress, and the vote of other states. The Congressional sympathizing enemies of the Radicals have concentrated all their energies upon it and more of their money than they did best and succeeded in their combat, just as was done the other day, when the goats made such a strong appeal to the wolves, that, nothing bath, they came into the fold. For a while all went well.

The goats were allowed to have the upper hand, and the wolves devastated the sheep and destroyed them without stint. At length, however, still more wolves came in and got all the offices and fat places, and began to destroy the goats. The destruction was fearful.

The goats appealed to their old enemies the sheep, but they, too, were powerless, when the whole flock, sheep and goats, went back to the shepherd, with his dog, and besought him to come back and slaughter and shear as he pleased, so that he protected them from the wolves, and this was the end of the happy republic of the sheep and the goats.

We need not teach a moral to the simple story, where meaning is so plain. We live very contentedly now and at peace, even if one party is more prescriptive in some things than we wish, our rights to protection, property and good order are undisturbed. We live in a happy republic of laws, where no man need be denied privileges, if he only concedes a settled question as settled.

It, however, our Radical friends get goutish and call upon the wild wolves, the wolves will soon come. They will take all power. No Kentucky Radical will be looked upon as "safe" and the wolves, the Federal Radicals, will take all the offices and make new ones. We will have a military governor, military court presided over by Massachusetts office-seekers, tithes for spoliis as wolves for blood, and anxious to make front out of the oppressed people. It is the world's history. The Roman proconsul has used his power to acquire wealth, and the burglar agent does the same. Each subordinate, feeling himself a foreigner, divided and separated from those among whom he lives, only seeks to make a tame for himself, and then to return to his home, his friends, the habits and ways of his youth to spend his days in ease.

We would dislike for the Kentucky Radicals to rule Kentucky, for many reasons, but that would be far better than to bring in the wolves, who would divide the Kentucky Radicals as well as the Democrats. It is again such a consequence we earnestly warn the Radicals in their present defeat to take no steps to invite the oppressors in. I only think their cause is just, we expect them to trust to its justice for a final award, and not to seek to profit by the injustice of others. We cannot think a Democratic swell will be sought for any other purpose than to do such things as all good citizens approve. Such is our wish and such we do not doubt will be the result, and finally all our citizens will come to exult, as we do, in the great Democratic victory of Saturday.

The Louisville Democrat.
Editors: Allow me to call your attention to the insufferable insolence of "watch dogs." Almost every day, and not a few, we see them in the yards of houses, either "puppy, impudent, who-hound, or ear of low degree," which indiscriminately bark at every one who passes their residence. I have no objection to a watch dog, which assails any one who enters his house, but those who keep up an infernal barking all the night at every passerby ought to be killed.

I am, perhaps, too severe. The dogs no better. Their owners, if any one, should kill them without benefit of clergy. Will you suggest it to the owners of canine property?

SURE TO REGULATE THE BOWELS.
Depend upon it, mother, it will give rest to your sons, and

RELIEF AND HEALTH TO YOUR INFANTS.
We have put up and sold this article for years, never having to prove to any one that we have ever been able to say of any one who we have ever sold it to, that it has not been of service to him.

It is a remedy for infants, and especially for those who are suffering with worms—either "puppy, impudent, who-hound, or ear of low degree," which indiscriminately bark at every one who passes their residence. I have no objection to a watch dog, which assails any one who enters his house, but those who keep up an infernal barking all the night at every passerby ought to be killed.

Some interesting suggestions will be found in our column of "Political News and Sentiments."

The Connecticut Election.
Connecticut votes to-day. The result will be looked for with great interest because of the presumed influence upon the future, upon the action of Congress, and the vote of other states. The Congressional sympathizing enemies of the Radicals have concentrated all their energies upon it and more of their money than they did best and succeeded in their combat, just as was done the other day, when the goats made such a strong appeal to the wolves, that, nothing bath, they came into the fold. For a while all went well.

The goats were allowed to have the upper hand, and the wolves devastated the sheep and destroyed them without stint. At length, however, still more wolves came in and got all the offices and fat places, and began to destroy the goats. The destruction was fearful.

The goats appealed to their old enemies the sheep, but they, too, were powerless, when the whole flock, sheep and goats, went back to the shepherd, with his dog, and besought him to come back and slaughter and shear as he pleased, so that he protected them from the wolves, and this was the end of the happy republic of the sheep and the goats.

We need not teach a moral to the simple story, where meaning is so plain. We live very contentedly now and at peace, even if one party is more prescriptive in some things than we wish, our rights to protection, property and good order are undisturbed. We live in a happy republic of laws, where no man need be denied privileges, if he only concedes a settled question as settled.

It, however, our Radical friends get goutish and call upon the wild wolves, the wolves will soon come. They will take all power. No Kentucky Radical will be looked upon as "safe" and the wolves, the Federal Radicals, will take all the offices and make new ones. We will have a military governor, military court presided over by Massachusetts office-seekers, tithes for spoliis as wolves for blood, and anxious to make front out of the oppressed people. It is the world's history. The Roman proconsul has used his power to acquire wealth, and the burglar agent does the same. Each subordinate, feeling himself a foreigner, divided and separated from those among whom he lives, only seeks to make a tame for himself, and then to return to his home, his friends, the habits and ways of his youth to spend his days in ease.

We would dislike for the Kentucky Radicals to rule Kentucky, for many reasons, but that would be far better than to bring in the wolves, who would divide the Kentucky Radicals as well as the Democrats. It is again such a consequence we earnestly warn the Radicals in their present defeat to take no steps to invite the oppressors in. I only think their cause is just, we expect them to trust to its justice for a final award, and not to seek to profit by the injustice of others. We cannot think a Democratic swell will be sought for any other purpose than to do such things as all good citizens approve. Such is our wish and such we do not doubt will be the result, and finally all our citizens will come to exult, as we do, in the great Democratic victory of Saturday.

The Louisville Democrat.
Editors: Allow me to call your attention to the insufferable insolence of "watch dogs." Almost every day, and not a few, we see them in the yards of houses, either "puppy, impudent, who-hound, or ear of low degree," which indiscriminately bark at every one who passes their residence. I have no objection to a watch dog, which assails any one who enters his house, but those who keep up an infernal barking all the night at every passerby ought to be killed.

I am, perhaps, too severe. The dogs no better. Their owners, if any one, should kill them without benefit of clergy. Will you suggest it to the owners of canine property?

SURE TO REGULATE THE BOWELS.
Depend upon it, mother, it will give rest to your sons, and

RELIEF AND HEALTH TO YOUR INFANTS.
We have put up and sold this article for years, never having to prove to any one that we have ever been able to say of any one who we have ever sold it to, that it has not been of service to him.

It is a remedy for infants, and especially for those who are suffering with worms—either "puppy, impudent, who-hound, or ear of low degree," which indiscriminately bark at every one who passes their residence. I have no objection to a watch dog, which assails any one who enters his house, but those who keep up an infernal barking all the night at every passerby ought to be killed.

Some interesting suggestions will be found in our column of "Political News and Sentiments."

The Connecticut Election.
Connecticut votes to-day. The result will be looked for with great interest because of the presumed influence upon the future, upon the action of Congress, and the vote of other states. The Congressional sympathizing enemies of the Radicals have concentrated all their energies upon it and more of their money than they did best and succeeded in their combat, just as was done the other day, when the goats made such a strong appeal to the wolves, that, nothing bath, they came into the fold. For a while all went well.

The goats were allowed to have the upper hand, and the wolves devastated the sheep and destroyed them without stint. At length, however, still more wolves came in and got all the offices and fat places, and began to destroy the goats. The destruction was fearful.

The goats appealed to their old enemies the sheep, but they, too, were powerless, when the whole flock, sheep and goats, went back to the shepherd, with his dog, and besought him to come back and slaughter and shear as he pleased, so that he protected them from the wolves, and this was the end of the happy republic of the sheep and the goats.

We need not teach a moral to the simple story, where meaning is so plain. We live very contentedly now and at peace, even if one party is more prescriptive in some things than we wish, our rights to protection, property and good order are undisturbed. We live in a happy republic of laws, where no man need be denied privileges, if he only concedes a settled question as settled.

It, however, our Radical friends get goutish and call upon the wild wolves, the wolves will soon come. They will take all power. No Kentucky Radical will be looked upon as "safe" and the wolves, the Federal Radicals, will take all the offices and make new ones. We will have a military governor, military court presided over by Massachusetts office-seekers, tithes for spoliis as wolves for blood, and anxious to make front out of the oppressed people. It is the world's history. The Roman proconsul has used his power to acquire wealth, and the burglar agent does the same. Each subordinate, feeling himself a foreigner, divided and separated from those among whom he lives, only seeks to make a tame for himself, and then to return to his home, his friends, the habits and ways of his youth to spend his days in ease.

We would dislike for the Kentucky Radicals to rule Kentucky, for many reasons, but that would be far better than to bring in the wolves, who would divide the Kentucky Radicals as well as the Democrats. It is again such a consequence we earnestly warn the Radicals in their present defeat to take no steps to invite the oppressors in. I only think their cause is just, we expect them to trust to its justice for a final award, and not to seek to profit by the injustice of others. We cannot think a Democratic swell will be sought for any other purpose than to do such things as all good citizens approve. Such is our wish and such we do not doubt will be the result, and finally all our citizens will come to exult, as we do, in the great Democratic victory of Saturday.

The Louisville Democrat.
Editors: Allow me to call your attention to the insufferable insolence of "watch dogs." Almost every day, and not a few, we see them in the yards of houses, either "puppy, impudent, who-hound, or ear of low degree," which indiscriminately bark at every one who passes their residence. I have no objection to a watch dog, which assails any one who enters his house, but those who keep up an infernal barking all the night at every passerby ought to be killed.

I am, perhaps, too severe. The dogs no better. Their owners, if any one, should kill them without benefit of clergy. Will you suggest it to the owners of canine property?

SURE TO REGULATE THE BOWELS.
Depend upon it, mother, it will give rest to your sons, and

RELIEF AND HEALTH TO YOUR INFANTS.
We have put up and sold this article for years, never having to prove to any one that we have ever sold it to, that it has not been of service to him.

It is a remedy for infants, and especially for those who are suffering with worms—either "puppy, impudent, who-hound, or ear of low degree," which indiscriminately bark at every one who passes their residence. I have no objection to a watch dog, which assails any one who enters his house, but those who keep up an infernal barking all the night at every passerby ought to be killed.

Some interesting suggestions will be found in our column of "Political News and Sentiments."

The Connecticut Election.
Connecticut votes to-day. The result will be looked for with great interest because of the presumed influence upon the future, upon the action of Congress, and the vote of other states. The Congressional sympathizing enemies of the Radicals have concentrated all their energies upon it and more of their money than they did best and succeeded in their combat, just as was done the other day, when the goats made such a strong appeal to the wolves, that, nothing bath, they came into the fold. For a while all went well.

The goats were allowed to have the upper hand, and the wolves devastated the sheep and destroyed them without stint. At length, however, still more wolves came in and got all the offices and fat places, and began to destroy the goats. The destruction was fearful.

The goats appealed to their old enemies the sheep, but they, too, were powerless, when the whole flock, sheep and goats, went back to the shepherd, with his dog, and besought him to come back and slaughter and shear as he pleased, so that he protected them from the wolves, and this was the end of the happy republic of the sheep and the goats.

We need not teach a moral to the simple story, where meaning is so plain. We live very contentedly now and at peace, even if one party is more prescriptive in some things than we wish, our rights to protection, property and good order are undisturbed. We live in a happy republic of laws, where no man need be denied privileges, if he only concedes a settled question as settled.

It, however, our Radical friends get goutish and call upon the wild wolves, the wolves will soon come. They will take all power. No Kentucky Radical will be looked upon as "safe" and the wolves, the Federal Radicals, will take all the offices and make new ones. We will have a military governor, military court presided over by Massachusetts office-seekers, tithes for spoliis as wolves for blood, and anxious to make front out of the oppressed people. It is the world's history. The Roman proconsul has used his power to acquire wealth, and the burglar agent does the same. Each subordinate, feeling himself a foreigner, divided and separated from those among whom he lives, only seeks to make a tame for himself, and then to return to his home, his friends, the habits and ways of his youth to spend his days in ease.

We would dislike for the Kentucky Radicals to rule Kentucky, for many reasons, but that would be far better than to bring in the wolves, who would divide the Kentucky Radicals as well as the Democrats. It is again such a consequence we earnestly warn the Radicals in their present defeat to take no steps to invite the oppressors in. I only think their cause is just, we expect them to trust to its justice for a final award, and not to seek to profit by the injustice of others. We cannot think a Democratic swell will be sought for any other purpose than to do such things as all good citizens approve. Such is our wish and such we do not doubt will be the result, and finally all our citizens will come to exult, as we do, in the great Democratic victory of Saturday.

The Louisville Democrat.
Editors: Allow me to call your attention to the insufferable insolence of "watch dogs." Almost every day, and not a few, we see them in the yards of houses, either "puppy, impudent, who-hound, or ear of low degree," which indiscriminately bark at every one who passes their residence. I have no objection to a watch dog, which assails any one who enters his house, but those who keep up an infernal barking all the night at every passerby ought to be killed.

I am, perhaps, too severe. The dogs no better

